NPU Marketing moves into car accessories

The NPUM has chosen the motoring accessories field for its latest own brand introduction. Introducing the products — NuGuard antifreeze—the Union's current bulletin Nutimes observes that 95 per cent of motorists in the UK use antifreeze . . . "and the remaining 5 per cent of non-users can only be described as belonging to the lunatic fringe."

NuGuard, which will be sold exclusively by pharmacists, is described as "a first-class product manufactured by a leading company in the field of BS 3152."

Most manufacturers, say NPUM, base their antifreeze formulae on ethylene glycol. A problem with this formulation is its corrosive action which makes it necessary for inhibitors to be used.

At the present time there are three BSI specifications covering ethylene glycol-based antifreeze mixtures:

- BS 3150 — inhibited with sodium mercaptobenzoate.
- BS 3151 — inhibited with sodium nitrite and sodium benzoate.
- BS 3152 — inhibited with sodium borate.

The most widely used specification is BS 3152 as being suitable for the majority of cars.

NuGuard antifreeze is issued in containers of 1 pint (3s 9d) and 1 quart (7s 2d) in packs of 24 and 12 respectively.

Higher wages at Vestric

Under an agreement reached between the Union of Shop, Distributive and Allied Workers and Vestric Ltd — 3,000 employees will receive increases in their basic rates as from August 17, as follows:

Male warehouse workers, £1 19s; female warehouse workers from £1 2s 6d to £1 16s 6d; female clerical workers from 16s 6d to £1 0s 6d; transport workers £3 1s.

Branch productivity bargaining, based on work study application commenced 18 months ago, will be completed by the end of the year.

The basic wage increases range from 14.5 to 22.6 per cent for males, and from 6.4 to 17.9 per cent for females.

Campaign on rubella vaccination

The Secretary of State for Social Services, Sir Keith Joseph, has circularised local health authorities asking that arrangements be made to start, as soon as possible after school holidays, vaccination against rubella for all girls between the ages of 11 and 14 years.

Initial priority is recommended for girls aged 13. The move follows Sir Keith's acceptance of a recommendation from the Joint Committee of Vaccination and Immunisation to ensure that as many girls as possible are offered protection against German measles before they reach normal child-bearing age.

It has been decided to supply free of charge the vaccine required by authorities up to March 31, 1971. Vaccine required after that date is to be bought by local authorities directly through commercial channels.

Commenting on the department's campaign, Smith Kline & French Laboratories point out that the total number of girls of 13 in the UK is about 370,000.

They add that in Australia, with a population of 12 millions, the initial campaign called for 400,000 doses of vaccine. In New Zealand, with a population of 2½ millions, the same quantity — 400,000 doses — was also requisitioned. In the United States it has been predicted that, by the end of this year, more than 20 million children will have been vaccinated against German measles.

"Though we have been slower in the UK to avail ourselves of the protection afforded by the vaccine introduced in February last, and are starting with a much more modest campaign, there is sufficient vaccine available for girls of all ages, and indeed for women of child-bearing age," say SK & F.

Six-months drug exports £68m

United Kingdom exports of medicinal and pharmaceutical products in June were valued at £11.45 million, bringing the total for the first-half of the year to £68.19m.

Because of a rearrangement in the statistics comparative figures for the same period in 1969 are not available.

Of the half-year's total £23.97m went to the sterling area, £4m to North America, and £26m to countries in Western Europe.

Imports of medicinal products during the six months totalled £16.26m of which antibiotics accounted for £4m.

New talks planned on NHS contract

Representatives of the Central NHS (Chemist Contractors) Committee, the National Pharmaceutical Union and the Pharmaceutical Society are to meet to discuss a new NHS contract.

First task will be to consider setting up a working party to take evidence on what changes are desirable and necessary in a new contract. This is in accordance with the terms of a motion passed by the Pharmaceutical Society's Branch Representatives meeting in May (C&D May 30, p 820).

The representatives of the contractors committee were appointed at a meeting on July 28.

The Contractors Committee have also satisfied themselves by examining the results of accuracy tests, that the introduction of the Department of Health's proposed new pence ready-reckoner would not work to the disadvantage of chemist contractors. They agreed to

C&D steps up the service

The unique service already provided by the C&D to its subscribers will be extended even further through a move made last week by Morgan-Grampian Ltd publishers of the journal.

They have acquired EDIT (Educational Development for Industrial Techniques Ltd), the management seminars and courses company.

The acquisition means that the C&D, together with the group's 24 other publications, will be able to act in subscribers' interests by promoting conferences and seminars for the profession.

In addition, EDIT arranges in-house training programmes for companies, and these will be expanded in future to cover specialised courses for technologists.

Degree success at Aberdeen accept the reckoner for the pricing of prescriptions in decimal currency.

Further representations are to be made to the Department about dispensing by doctors in certain parts of the South-west London and Surrey Executive Council area. The Local Pharmaceutical Committee had sought a review of the supply of drugs and appliances by doctors in Frimley, Camberley, Farnham and Woking but their request was turned down. The Committee agreed that chemist contractors should be recommended to co-operate in the Pharmaceutical Society's plans for a manpower survey of retail pharmacies in the autumn. Rpm victory means some busy times ahead for PATA

With the Restrictive Practices Court's judgment behind them and "the new climate of thinking" that the resale price maintenance case has engendered, the Proprietary Articles Trade Association is going to be "very much busier than it has been for many years," said the secretary, Mr C. C. Green, at a meeting of the NPU executive committee last week.

"And this means more expense if we are to do the job properly," Mr Green declared. "We have a very important role to play if we are not to lose the advantages which the judgment gives us and for which we have fought so hard to achieve."

Turning to the importance of a nationwide network for reporting price cutting, Mr Green said his council fully supported the Executive Committee's suggestion that local PATA secretaries should be re-appointed as a matter of urgency. He was glad to hear that Mr J. Wright was planning to join him in sending out a joint letter asking each NPU branch to appoint such a secretary, to whom all local pharmacists could send full details of price cutting activities for forwarding to the PATA for action.

The association, he said, was very conscious of the need for quick action to be taken against price cutters and it was their aim to arrange for legal action to be taken as soon as possible.

In that connection the legal position was that the PATA still had to work within the limits of the 1956 Act, under which an individual manufacturer was the only party that could bring an action against a trader who cut the prices.

A decision was taken at the meeting to increase the PATA subscription, payable through NPU, from one guinea to thirty shillings.

£100 'fine' for substitution

For being in breach of his terms of service with the Hampshire Executive Council, the Council's Pharmaceutical Services Committee have recommended that £100 be withdrawn from a contractor's remuneration and that his conduct be reported to the Pharmaceutical Society.

Reporting the case in its August issue, The Executive Council states that the Services Committee received a complaint on behalf of a patient that a chemist appeared to have substituted diazepam tablets of DDSA Ltd for Valium (Roche) and nitrofurantoin for Furadantin.

Both drugs had been dispensed in cardboard boxes. Not being satisfied that the tablets were as ordered the complainant returned to the chemist who at first insisted that they were correctly dispensed.

After pressing the matter he agreed to change his earlier statement.

In a letter to the Executive Council the chemist said he dispensed the Furadantin from a tin marked Smith Kline & French and he was quite sure at the time that they were the ones ordered.

For the Valium he had used a small stock of diazepam supplied by DDSA which he was certain were of the same strength and quality. He added that he was out of stock of small tablet bottles at the time, the position being rectified in a few days.

The respondent did not appear at the hearing when the Committee found that he had, without authority of the prescriber, substituted other tablets for proprietary brand products and that he had not marked the prescriptions indicating his actions.

Heart disease deaths

In twelve years, death rates from arteriosclerotic and degenerative heart disease have risen sharply among men in the 45-54 age group: the increase amounts to as much as 66 per cent in the Netherlands, according to World Health, the magazine of the World Health Organisation.

Among the countries cited, only Japan, with a drop of 14 per cent, proved an exception to the general trend. The United States and Switzerland, with

Patients told: ask for NP

"You can ask your doctor to write the letters NP (Nomen Proprium) on the prescription, which should make the chemist put the name of the medicine on its label"

That advice is given in the August issue of Which? to a member of the Consumer Association who had complained that different tablets received by him and his wife were almost identical yet were dispensed in bottles which said merely "Use as directed"

Which? mentions that discussions on making NP labelling obligatory are being carried on. In the meantime, asking for NP to be put on the prescription may avoid getting unwanted medicines, but neither the doctor nor chemist are under any obligation.

Which? has also received a complaint about chemists' labels that obscured warning messages by the manufacturer.

Chemists and blood donors

Members of the National Pharmaceutical Union in the north-western Home Counties are being asked to take part in an experiment with the object of recruiting new blood donors.

A poster has been supplied with the NPU pink Supplement for display in pharmacies. It states that pre-paid enrolment forms are available at the counter—a supply has been sent to the members concerned. The campaign is being run for the North London Blood Transfusion Centre, Edgware, Middlesex. If successful, it is hoped to extend the idea throughout the country at a later date.

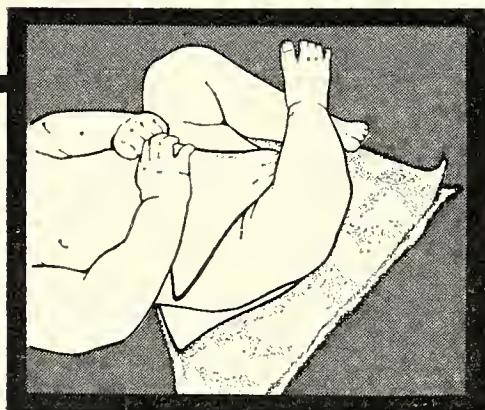

increases of 3 per cent and 8 per cent respectively, showed only a moderate increase. The increase in England and Wales was 35 per cent.

Death rates for arteriosclerotic and degenerative heart disease were approximately three times higher for men than for women.

The figures cover the period 1955-1967 and the increase is regarded as particularly significant because the factor of old age does not yet play a part.

The Xrayser column

Away from it all

There comes a time when the mere thought of detaching oneself from the daily round raises the spirit, particularly after a day in which the fates appear to conspire to make life a little more trying than it normally is.

The morning mail brings its quota of mild irritants—an awaited item from a supplier, already later than anticipated, indicates that the order, which spelt out in block letters the article required and emphasised the size by underlining, turns out to be the wrong thing; a statement, paid three months earlier, brings dire warnings as to the future if a remittance is not received by return; an intimation that purchase tax is no longer to be charged on a prescription proprietary product, and a glance at the shelf discloses that one has stock "attracting"—felicitous word—some five pounds, taken by a needy Government at the time of purchase and retained to ease the nation's financial stress.

And having started in such manner, the rest of the day proceeds to indicate that the morning mail was only the overture. So, at the close of day, one's mind turns to the comforts of a deck chair on the beach, or perhaps a trout stream in Devon or in the Highlands of Scotland, or perchance a cruise in the sunny Mediterranean.

But is it possible to get away from it all? A tour by car through our own fair land finds one in villages, small and large towns and cities, and where is the pharmacist who is able to turn a blind eye to the face displayed by pharmacy in other places? As well expect a collector to hurry past a row of antique shops in an old cathedral city.

And there are surprises, and sometimes shocks. There are still some pharmacies which contrive to present a dignified and semi-professional appearance, both inside and out, and one feels a glow of pleasure and an urge—not always resisted—to step inside to make a trivial purchase and to remark upon the surroundings. And there are others, undignified almost beyond belief, which seem to be attempting to conceal, with a fair degree of success, that they are pharmaceutical.

Carboys and mahogany cases

One reflects on the contrasts—here, a pharmacy with a bright and clean window, as dated as the carboy it displays, and the mahogany cases to be seen in the interior; as dated, if you like, as the gentleman at the counter, that prehistoric barricade held in such low esteem today, and yet so obviously the focal point of the establishment. And the certificate hanging on the wall discloses that its owner pitted his knowledge and his wits against a terrifying and awesome body calling itself the Board of Examiners.

No doubt he, like myself, could distinguish gentian from calumba root, and knew the difference between coca and jaborandi leaves. In all probability, he showed considerable dexterity in producing pills and suppositories, and he may even have made a fresh infusion for his mixture. For, you see, I knew his world, and he mine.

There, on the other hand, stands not an establishment but an emporium, and its owner, concealed among a massed array of silk stockings, necklaces, hair dyes and tints, and a wide range of merchandise showing slashed prices, is a man of much higher scientific attainment than the old fossil who is so obviously my contemporary.

Jumping into commerce

The veteran has at least the satisfaction of having passed a good part of his life carrying out the duties for which he was trained and examined, and that may be his sole reward. And his younger colleague, to conceal his frustration, throws himself into the world of commerce and makes a financial success of it—but of what? That is the question which must be answered.

Bayer Products to change name

Bayer Products Co, subsidiary of Sterling-Winthrop Group Ltd, is changing its name to Winthrop Laboratories as from September 1.

Announcing the forthcoming change the company said that in the 1950's they foresaw the potential importance of Continental markets for their British manufactured products and established an exporting organisation under the name Winthrop with marketing companies under the same name in ten European countries.

Winthrop sales to the Continent have now overtaken sales in the UK and, with the countries of Europe moving closer together, have rendered the dual name of the company more incongruous. The change should therefore unify their identity throughout Europe and have the added advantage of avoiding confusion with Sales and Profit before Tax are a record, despite unsettled trading conditions coupled with rising operating expense.

Dividends have been restricted in the past to augment liquid resources. The time has now come when a more realistic dividend is recommended in relation to profit earned. It is proposed that it be increased from 8% to 15% for the year under review.

A Scrip Issue of one Ordinary Unit of 5s. for every 5 Ordinary Stock Units of 5s. held on the 26th June 1970, is also proposed.

The Future. Sales for the four months to June show a satisfactory increase. The business is in good heart, and I am hopeful that the profit for the current year will show some improvement on the present level.

the German company Farbenfabriken Bayer AG with which they have had no connection since 1939.

FBA Pharmaceuticals Ltd, the German company's subsidiary in the UK is expected to change its title in 1972 but no decision has yet been taken on the name to be used. (Comment p 159)

Moves in Guinness pharmaceutical group

Arthur Guinness Son & Co Ltd have decided to transfer their pharmaceutical research activities from Twyford Laboratories Ltd to the Crookes Group premises at Basingstoke, where they will be combined with the development company, Twyford Pharmaceutical Services Ltd, to form a new unit.

The first effect of this, say Guinness, will be a significant reduction in the cost of their pharmaceutical research activities. Some redundancies are inevitable but generous severance payments will be made to those people affected, the company adds.

It is anticipated that the whole operation will be phased in such a way as to be completed by late spring 1971.

The decision does not affect the Crookes group of companies which is exceeding the rate of growth which was planned for the current financial year.

Looking to Europe

Lord Hill, chairman of Laporte Industries (Holdings) Ltd at his last annual meeting on July 29 said the company was turning more abroad for growth of markets, particularly Europe, while there had been an unmistakable slowing down in the UK. "Our efforts therefore have been directed towards markets where growth is greater," he said.

He added that total sales for the first three months of the current financial year "were of the same order as last year but profits were significantly lower."

The association with Solway et Cie, proposed in March, was approved together with the increase in the authorised capital from £18.5m to £22.5m.

More room for Fisons

Fisons pharmaceutical division has received planning permission for the erection of a new five-storey office building on its headquarters site at Derby Road, Loughborough.

The new building which it is expected will be completed in the latter part of 1971 will provide about 35,000 sq ft of office space and ancillary services. It will house approximately 250 administrative, sales and marketing staff.

Heron centenary

As part of their celebrations to mark one hundred years trading, the staff of John H. Heron Ltd had an outing to the East Coast and have received some specially inscribed pottery.

The business was founded by George Heron, grandfather of the present managing director. Their product Proment, now distributed all over the UK and abroad, is produced in an "olde worlde" mill which incorporates one of Goole's two remaining windmills.

The mill sails were removed about 75 years ago, but the whitewashed mill tower still stands with doors flanked by ancient stone grinding wheels. The tower is now used as a warehouse and the "olde worlde" look outside has not stood in the way of inside progress, mechanisation and business methods.

The Aphid gun (13s 9d) is approved for amateur garden use under the Agricultural Chemicals Approval Scheme.

in size as the need was mostly to use with cosmetics either at home, in the office or packed in small cases or grips when travelling. Market research had also shown that the tissues should desirably be white. Women, on the whole, do not like deep tone tissues as they were worried about the possibility of the dye coming off on the skin, when in contact with make-up removal lotions and creams. (Bowater-Scott Corporation Ltd, Bowater House, Knightsbridge, London, SW 1.)

New in corn plasters

Brocapharm have launched Pedosan, (7s 6d) a new medicated corn plaster, in the London television area, said to be scientifically designed with a special shape to allow complete freedom of movement of the toe, while maintaining maximum contact between corn and medicament.

Pedosan is supplied in display outers containing twelve envelopes of corn plasters and six envelopes of callous plasters on a sale-or-return basis. (Brocapharm Ltd, Trend House, Pyrford Road, West Byfleet, Surrey).

A new hand torch

A new general purpose torch with a streamlined tapered case has been introduced by Electric Power Storage Ltd. Known as the Exide Exray torch, it is moulded in tough shock-resistant polystyrene with a blue body and a white head. It has a recessed slide switch and a pre-focus bulb. Two sizes are available: 2TP15A (10s) is 6 ins long with a 2½ in diameter head and takes two T15 batteries; batteries extra (1s 4d). 2TP20A (12s) is 7½ in long with a 2½ in diameter head and takes two T20/U2 batteries, batteries extra 1s 10d.

Exide Exray torches are supplied in bright attractive packs containing three torches ready for display on shelves, on counters or in the window. (Electric Power Storage Ltd, P.O. Box 5, Clifton Junction, Swinton, Manchester M27 2LR.)

Polaroid snow goggles

Available to wholesalers from September 1 are the Polaroid protective snow goggles in two sizes, mens (99s) and ladies (90s). The laminated visor is shatter-proof and to ensure comfort in use is designed with a "super soft snug inner lining." (Polaroid (UK) Ltd, Welwyn Garden City, Herts.)

Photographic

Regula cameras loading system

All new 35-mm models in the Regula camera range now feature Quickload, a simplified method of loading 35-mm film. The system is based on the use of a special take-up spool with a large drop-in slot for the film. The film is simply dropped into the slot on the special spool and then the camera back can be closed and the film wound on without having to make further adjustments. The Regula 35-mm range contains five cameras from £11 10s to £41 10s. (Photopia Ltd, Hempstalls Lane, Newcastle, Staffs.)

Easier slide binding

Photopia have introduced the Hermafix slide binding kit (41s) which has been designed to make the technique easy. An ingenious jig locates everything including glasses, masks, self-adhesive binders and the transparency, and, claim the manufacturers, the whole process takes a little longer than it does using plastic mounts. A mask and binder refill is available at 15s 9d. (Photopia Ltd, Hempstalls Lane, Newcastle, Staffs.)

INFORMATION FOR MANUFACTURERS

Perfume introductions

Florasynth Ltd, Greenford, Middlesex, have created two new perfume specialities, Ambresol FG 6910 and Bouvardium FG 6912. Ambresol FG 6910 is described as a solid fixative which "imparts depth and the warm sultry notes of natural amber."

Bouvardium FG 6912 was "inspired" by bouvardia, the tropical American herbal shrub with sweet-smelling white and yellow flowers which is accounted "an ideal base for perfumes of that type."

H&R chemical compendium

Comprehensive particulars of more than 500 single-chemical odorants of flavourings, as well as intermediates of importance in pharmacy, are listed in 240 pages of a compendium by Haarmann & Reimer. Printed on lightweight paper, bound in a plastic cover, it may easily be carried in the pocket. Copies may be obtained on application to Haarmann & Reimer GmbH, Holzminden, Germany.

Polythene film products

Polythene bags in an exceptionally wide range of sizes and in four gauges are offered by Turner Whitehead Industries Ltd, Leathermarket Street, London SE 1.

The company also lists polythene lay flat tubing, sheeting in standard sizes or in reel form as well as polythene tarpaulins made from heavy gauge material complete with brass eyelets arranged around the perimeter.

Fragrances for men's toiletries

Providing novel fragrances for the rapidly expanding market for men's toiletries Camilli, Albert & Laloue at Grasse, France, have recently developed a range of pure absolutes. The products are absolutes of Tabac (tobacco), Foin (hay), Liatrix (liatris), Melilot (melilotus), Mate Vert (green tea), and Aunee (tecampane).

The Camilli products are marketed in the U.K. by the chemicals division of Pfizer Ltd, Sandwich, Kent; samples are available, on request.

Stock toiletries containers

Paklite have introduced a new range of clear pvc stock containers. Stockists have been appointed so that there is no minimum order figure for any item in the range.

Containers available include triangulars of 32, 75, 130 and 300 cc capacity; and cylindricals of 150 and 250cc — an intermediate 100cc version is promised. There is also a 540cc Boston round bottle, a 4oz jar and a 350cc flat oval shampoo bottle.

A plastics Grecian urn decanter for bubble baths is also being introduced. Paklite undertake printing and gold blocking for any item. (Paklite Ltd, Denbigh Road, Bletchley, Bucks.).

Clearing the way

The publication by the British Disinfectant Manufacturers Association of agreed definitions for describing the industry's products (last week p 125) brings a welcome clarification to the complex world of disinfectant terminology.

People's failure to recognise that they are using different terms to describe the same idea or the same term to cover different ideas is one of the most effective barriers to communication, as pharmacists well know. The need for approved names and rules of chemical nomenclature makes that sufficiently evident. The BDMA definitions refer to abstract ideas and generalisations. In such a situation the only answer, if confusion is to be avoided, is for all to agree upon the usage to be adopted.

The Association is expecting their members to bring their literature and labels into line, and it is to be hoped that other manufacturers — and users — will also adapt themselves to the agreed definitions so that the aim of complete unification inside the United Kingdom within two to three years can be achieved.

While a step forward has been taken on terminology, progress on another project in the disinfectant field has temporarily halted. This is the preparation of a Hospital Disinfectant Approval List whose publication had been promised for early in 1970 (C&D, November 22, 1969, p 466). Reason for the delay is given by Dr J. C. Kelsey in the July issue of the Department of Health and Social Services publication Health Trends. Dr Kelsey, who is director of the Disinfection Reference Laboratory of the Central Public Health Laboratory, had, jointly with Mr G. Sykes of the BDMA, devised a capacity test for disinfectants that would have been used in assessing disinfectants for inclusion in the list.

It has now been found that the test is still not sufficiently reproducible for it to be accepted as reliable.

Further developmental work is needed which may take some time, but Dr Kelsey makes the point that sufficient published information exists for hospitals who wish to draw up a disinfectant programme. This should be done by a group that includes a microbiologist and a pharmacist with representative medical and nursing advice.

What's in a name?

Twenty-five years of confusion for the uninitiated over the word "Bayer" in the United Kingdom may gradually disappear after September when Bayer Products Co (subsidiary of Sterling Winthrop Group Ltd) changes its name to Winthrop Laboratories (p 153).

In the years following the 1939-45 war pharmacists have had to associate the name with two companies that had no financial connection.

The duplicity arose from the purchase by Sterling Drug Inc, New York, of the Custodian of Enemy Property's 50 per cent stake in German Bayer's UK pharmaceutical subsidiary which had been confiscated during the war years. In the inter-war period German Bayer and Sterling were equal partners in what was then Bayer Products Ltd.

As the German pharmaceutical industry got on its feet again after 1945 Farbenfabriken Bayer AG of Leverkusen naturally looked for expansion in its former overseas markets and in many territories was able to start up again using the Bayer title and trade marks as before.

In the UK, however, it was necessary to drop the word Bayer unless prefixed with "Farbenfabriken" or similar addition.

A company was registered in the late 1950's to re-establish the Leverkusen's pharmaceutical products in the UK. For a short while it was known as Leymedic, which changed in 1959 to the present FBA Pharmaceuticals.

A breakthrough for the German company came in August 1968 with the registration of Bayer (UK) Ltd to act as a holding company for their UK subsidiaries. In October of the same year Bayer Chemicals Ltd was established and took over the marketing in the UK of the Farbenfabriken Bayer's chemical division.

Litigation appears to have been ever-present until last month (C&D, July 11, p 37), when it was stated in the High Court that terms for the use of the Bayer Cross trade mark for pharmaceutical products had been settled although what those terms were have not been disclosed.

As the American company gives up the title the German company is expected to re-instate it in 1972. Whether the confusion will end there or not we do not know—nor whether the long fight in the courts for possession was worthwhile.

Out of the dust of battle in the courts emerges a picture of Teutonic persistence which seems to have succeeded in its objective.

'Not a revolutionary document'

The "code of good practice" for the toiletry and cosmetic industry which was ratified last week by the Councils of the Toilet Preparations Federation and the Society of Cosmetic Chemists (last week, p 124) seems at first sight a wasted effort.

In fact it is difficult to single out any of the recommendations of the report that would not already be routine procedure of the cosmetic manufacturers.

In introducing the code to representatives of the industry and the Press, members of the select committee which drew up the code conceded that it contained "first basic principles only;" and that it was "not a revolutionary document or even a statement of intent."

Furthermore, the code is a voluntary one and nothing can be done about the transgressors.

However, three appendices are to be added at some future date. They will contain standards and techniques on hygiene, on toxicological and dermatological safety, and on quality control of ingredients and products.

Looking to the planned rigorous controls for the manufacture of medicines, the toiletry and cosmetic industry may be planning these moves so that it has an answer ready should the Government decide to step in with a body comparable to the Committee on Safety of Drugs.

If that is so, then the issue of this new code can be justified as a first step by waving the industry's flag.

FLOODS, BURSTS AND BOOMS

by Peter Miller

There are those who say that the British weather is going to extremes—that storms are much more severe, and that rainfall and snowfall are more prolonged. That may be so, but some experts say there is another reason why flooding is likely to become more severe in the future. As the country becomes more built up rainfall cannot seep into the ground, but has to be carried away. Rivers have not been enlarged to cater for this.

This may be simplifying the position, but floods do seem to be potentially more dangerous. It is estimated that the flood damage in the southern part of England in 1968 cost the insurance industry about £20 million in claims. And probably at least as much as this was not insured.

Surprisingly, a great deal of commercial and industrial property is not insured against flood damage. While householders usually have this cover included automatically in their "comprehensive" policies covering the contents of their houses (and should be able to have it added to the policies covering buildings for a modest additional premium) the same cannot be said for commercial and industrial property.

Flood is a "special peril" which has to be specifically requested. Often there are apparently good grounds for not taking this extra cover. The area in question may never have been subject to flooding. And there is the expense involved.

Whether the first "reason" is still justifiable is open to question. During the last serious flooding many areas were hit for the first time. When dealing with nature it is impossible to be categorical.

Since storm and tempest may be included in the existing insurance, it is important to differentiate between this and flood damage. There is no doubt that a good deal of what, colloquially, is referred to as flooding is really storm damage and thus is covered by a policy even when there is no specific extension for flood.

Broadly speaking, flooding is considered by insurers to occur when water escapes from its normal confines. And the most common example of this is simply water from a river which has overflowed.

There are plenty of occasions when water—whether from a storm or melting snow—does not run away quickly enough.

It is unlikely that this will be looked on as flood damage, although it may well be possible to claim under the section of a policy which refers to storm and tempest.

Another area of difficulty is the insurance position so far as damage by frost is concerned. In the very severe winter of 1962-63, insurers found themselves in some difficulty. While it had never been their intention to cover the risk of damage to property caused by frost, many found themselves paying such claims, on an ex gratia basis.

This is because a number of policy holders had found a dictionary which referred to storm as a "fall of snow, long frost". As soon as some frost claims were paid under the storm and tempest heading, other insurers found that, to maintain goodwill with their policy holders, they had to fall into line.

Having been caught in this way, it was not long before the insurance market decided to redraft its policies specifically to exclude damage caused by frost—which had been their original intention, although it had not been expressed clearly enough to prevent claims being made against them.

The position, therefore, at the moment, is that many policies specifically exclude damage caused by frost. Nevertheless, one insurance company decided to move in the opposite direction, no doubt as a form of sales promotion.

It extended its normal householder's policy so as, automatically, to include a limited form of frost damage. As might be expected, there is an excess in respect of each claim. But this is only £10 (which is the same figure as the other excesses imposed by the particular company).

Inevitably, there are a number of exclusions so far as this extension is concerned. For instance, there is no cover for any destruction or damage which is due to or traceable directly or indirectly to normal wear and tear.

Also (as in the case of storm, tempest and flood risks), there is no cover for destruction or damage to gates or fences. Other exclusions apply to paths, paving, dry rubble walls, garden water tanks, and external paintwork or decorations. From this it can be seen that the insurers cover themselves fairly well, and that the frost extension is not as valuable as it appears to be at first. Nevertheless, by no means everything is excluded. For instance, claims can be made for damage to roofing, brickwork and so on. Even here, however, the full cost of the repairs may not be met by the insurers, since they have the right to make a reasonable deduction for depreciation.

Whether it is worthwhile for a policy holder to change from one insurer (with whom goodwill has been built up) solely to secure the somewhat limited advantages of this frost cover, is open to question. Nevertheless, there is the added point that the excesses imposed by this company are £10, compared with the more usual figure of £15—although there are some insurers who still have not increased their excesses above the old level of £5, and one or two companies do not impose excesses at all.

In practice, the scope for changing insurers so far as the buildings of any premises are concerned is fairly restricted simply because so many houses are the subject of mortgage agreements, and the mortgagors have the right to stipulate which insurers shall be used. Generally, this right is exercised in view of the income from commission that will be forthcoming from the particular insurers.

Before leaving the subject of insurance against the weather, it should be stressed that a policy should never be looked upon as being in any way a maintenance contract. Its aim is to cover certain specified fortuitous accidents.

An American scientist has been reported as saying that sonic booms have a beneficial effect on property. The theory is that the booms shake down a building and help it to settle.

Be that as it may, the majority of those responsible for property are unlikely to welcome sonic booms. Tests carried out by Lightning aircraft have shown that extensive damage may be caused.

But too much should not be read into the tests. No one knows for certain whether the damage caused by a supersonic airliner would be worse than that caused by a Lightning. Technical opinion seems to be taking the view that any damage caused is likely to be appreciably less severe.

Even so, it is unlikely that future booms caused by airliners will be completely insignificant—judging from the impact of the test booms. There were 11 test booms in all and they produced 788 claims for damage.

Until now, the majority of claims have been met by the Government, simply because it was only Government-owned aircraft that were capable of breaking the sound barrier. In the future, an increasing number of supersonic aircraft are likely to be brought into use by the airlines of the world.

What will be the insurance position? It is impossible to forecast it accurately. It is being discussed at length in insurance circles, virtually behind locked doors.—certainly with maximum discretion.

But until insurers decide to change their policy wordings—which, of course, they are at liberty to do when a contract comes up for renewal—there appears to be no doubt that the usual form of extension under a policy covering "special perils", which refers to aircraft damage, would give the necessary protection.

Admittedly, insurance men who drafted the clauses under which such claims may be made probably never envisaged that property would be liable to damage by sonic booms. But that is irrelevant. What matters is that, worded as it is, the clause does give this cover.

What insurers have to decide is whether to continue on the same basis, cut out the cover altogether, or only give it when a special request is made.

When the property-damaging potential of the Concorde is known, the Government will almost certainly have to take some decision about sonic booms and their effect on property.

It seems likely that either cover for this damage will continue to be given in policies, or that no more than a fairly modest additional premium is likely to be charged.

The market place

The letter in the correspondence columns under the pseudonym "Au Serieux" (July 25, page 110) deserves the widest publicity. Ever since Mr Heath persuaded Parliament to abolish resale price maintenance, supermarkets seem to have been regarded by the public as the fairy god-mothers of the community, supplying goods cheaply out of the goodness of their hearts. The letter by "Au Serieux" indicates only one way in which these "bargains" are achieved, and it seems obvious that the further the public gets from knowing the real retail price, the more common this type of merchandising will become.

It seems obvious now, that in certain sectors, goods are deliberately overpriced by the manufacturers to allow for "bonuses," which are then used to promote "bargains." When the temporary promotion is over, then the goods return to a price which allows for an excessive margin of profit.

In the old days, when a fair came to town, you went along knowing that people would be "done" in their greed for bargains. Apparently the fair is now permanently resident in the High Street. It was argued that by abolishing price maintenance the inefficient would go to the wall. Now it would appear that the battle is joined between the scrupulous and the unscrupulous.

And the latter seem to be making considerable headway—at the expense of those who continue to operate fairly.

Home Office security

Mr Maudling has been reported, while moving the second reading of the Misuse of Drugs Act, as saying, "I am convinced that we are right to maintain the attitude in the Bill that cannabis should be treated as a dangerous drug." I have previously written of a pharmacist presented with a prescription for eight ounces tinct. cannabis, and I asked then whether the figures for the production and use of tinct. cannabis had gone up in the last years. Could the Home Office now reply? Since it has no medical use there is a case for this form of the drug to be withdrawn in this country. The Home Office talks about security in pharmacies. Here is a golden opportunity for it to put its own house in order, and remove the temptation from any doctor to prescribe this tincture. Security in this case starts and finishes in the Home Office.

Pharmaceutical inflation

I note from the report of Council proceedings that Mr Albert Howells is to represent the Society on the General Pharmaceutical Council of Wales. An obvious choice, of course, a distinguished Welshman for such a post, and one that will meet with almost universal approval. The slight note of disquiet sounded in that last sentence is caused by the fact that Mr Howells is already a member of the Central Contractors Committee.

Those who have passionately advocated Society representation on the Contractors Committee for England would not have been satisfied by a Council nominee who was already a member of that Committee, but no doubt Mr Howells' obvious qualities for this position more than outweighed this slight disadvantage.

There is, however, a wider aspect to this problem. Time and again one finds the same names filling responsible positions on government committees and commissions. They are always, of course, the obvious choice in each case, except if viewed from the total commitment of those involved. One wonders just how much committed effort, as against mere attendances, can be sustained in too many directions. Perhaps, however, we have an inflationary tendency in pharmaceutical politics, with too few capable men available for too many jobs.

Love, not war

Mr Justice Graham, commenting on a card issued with contraceptive tablets, said that it was claimed that the dosage scheme was fully reliable. "If it turns out to be," he continued, "it will no doubt be recognised as a new weapon in the armoury of women" (C&D August 1, page 124). We have all heard about the battle of the sexes, but this is just ridiculous!

Auto-suggestion

A potted history of last year's influenza epidemic is published by Duphan Ltd, in a booklet entitled "Condition Red." It sets out official figures where available, and projects some which are not, and I see no reason to doubt their accuracy. They do quote the figure issued by the Confederation of British Industry of between ten and fifteen per cent of its workers being off in a day in December. I see no reason to doubt the accuracy of this figure either, but would question the reason why such a large percentage were off work.

Doctors in our area claimed to be so overworked that a great deal of diagnosis was done by telephone, and a great deal too by self-diagnosis. Indeed, I have never in my life known a time when so many non-febrile conditions of coughing and sneezing were treated by expensive antibiotics.

Our epidemic reached and stayed at its peak until press publicity died down—then so did the epidemic! Epidemic there certainly was, but to take figures of those absent from work and claim them all to be 'flu victims, seems not to be too scientific.

The case is made for mass vaccination. One of our larger employers in this area was willing last year to take any kind of 'flu vaccine, his impression being that as long as his employees were vaccinated, it was at least prevention against mass hysteria. Colds were caught which remained colds, and were not magnified into influenza, and the employees remained at work. Who says the days of witchcraft are over? Why not meet the auto-suggestion of an epidemic with the auto-suggestion of immunity!

Requiem for a rebel

Death attends the rebel, in the dark black night of stealth;
So Millward's gone, alas, poor lad—to the Ministry of Health.
His comrades now are left to fight the fight alone,
To carry on campaigning; to risk both stick and stone;
And pharmacists are left, bereft, to only dream of wealth.
For Millward he has gone, alas—to the Ministry of Health.

Ask your Chemist for Carresin says the Nurse

But will he have it? asks Dr Crowther

With fourteen letters in the morning post all saying "My chemist has no Carresin" Sales Director Ken Rivers was feeling desperate. Every chemist in the country has been told about Carresin — every wholesaler given details. Nurses and Health Visitors are giving the new mother excellent working samples and telling them to "get it from your Chemist".

* He carefully chose an antique Dutch flintlock made by Leonard Graeff and having silver mounted ivory stocks, terminating in a silver helmet.

Carresin is a "chemists only" line — and here is the only sales channel blocked. In despair Ken reached for his gun* "Stop Ken!" we cried. "Tell the chemists once more about Carresin". Looking the pharmaceutical profession keenly in the eye Ken said "We don't want you to order a couple of gross of Carresin—but please put three bottles on your shelves from the wholesaler!"

New mothers WANT Carresin for use at nappy change—to control bowel bacteria on the skin (those which cause gastro-enteritis) to prevent nappy rash, to remove bowel soil. Don't you feel that you owe it to your customers—the new mothers—to have Carresin when they ask for it?
